Seven hundred dead on the Fourth of July — which reminds us peace can be as deadly as war.

The kids must have kept close track of their firecracker supply this year. The last explosion died away fairly early Tuesday night — which I interpret to mean the known firecracker stock is gone. Usually some little moron mislays a couple of bunches — and rediscovers 'em along about mid-night.

Effect of delayed firecracker operation is like life in an apartment house. Man undressing drops one shoe on the floor. An hour later his neighbor in the apartment below raps on the door and asks: "Pal, how about dropping the other shoe . . . now . . . so I can go back to sleep?"

But it was no holiday for American boys in Korea — where we are fighting another "peace."

Moscow dispatches quoting Russian propaganda spokesmen failed to mention Molotov and Vishinsky on the Fourth of July — the presumption being that both gents were out of town.

Molotov is supposed to be in Manchuria directing the Korean campaign — which leaves the Berlin sector to be alerted against Vishinsky.

Other men are known by the company they keep — but Russians are known by the divisions they bring with them.

Young Men Must Register for Draft

Calling attention to the fact that failure to register is a violation of law and makes the delinquent liable penalty, Brig. General E. L. Compere, Arkansas State Director of Selective Service, today outlined registration requirements under the Selective Service Act of 1948, as extended, which he said he believed were not thoroughly understood by all of the general public. "The obligation to register," General Compere said, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled regardless of whether men are being inducted into the armed forces under the Selective Service Act. The obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male, citizen or resident, in the United States between the ages of 18 and 28, with only the general exception of members of the armed forces on active duty and certain aliens."

The young man who becomes 18 is required to register at a local board office within five days of the date of his eighteenth birthday, General Compere explained, but if he happens to be away from home he need not return; he may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and the record will be sent to the local board having jurisdiction, even though it is in another state. After he registers, it is mandatory that a registrant keep his local board informed of any change in his address or change in status, the director pointed out. This applies after he becomes 28 as well as before.

Questioned concerning the man who did not register during the designated registration days — August 30 to September 18, 1948 — because he was then on active duty in the armed forces, General Compere explained that he is required to register within 30 days of the time he was separated from the armed forces. This applies to men who became 28 years old while on active military service, from a status which did not require his registration to a status which does require it must register promptly to be within the law, General Compere said, adding that those who were out of the country on the registration days must register within five days following the date they reenter the United States, which includes Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

General Compere said that registrants entering the United States for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following the date of their entry.

The penalty for violation of any of the provisions of the Selective Service Act of 1948, General Compere pointed out, is five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

Holiday Death Toll Nearing All-Time High

By The Associated Press

Accidental death struck down at least 730 Americans during their fourth day of independence week end. The toll was much higher than expected, and rocketed toward the all-time high set in 1936 — 761 deaths.

Citizens died in traffic crashes, by drowning, and by miscellaneous accidents at a little better than one every 10 minutes during the 102 hour period between 6 p. m. local time Friday and last night at midnight.

Highway smashups claimed 458 lives in what was predicted as the biggest U. S. traffic jam in history.

Water deaths totaled 168. Miscellaneous kinds of mishaps killed 113.

No one was reported killed in Fourth of July fireworks tragedies, but the other deaths were tied in with Independence day celebrations.

The national safety council had predicted that 385 would die in traffic crashes. But the toll mounted and mounted as the holiday drivers coursed along the highways.

Mid-way through yesterday, as death figures kept piling up, Ned H. Dearborn, council president, issued a sane driving appeal to "try our best to save at least a few lives by acting like civilized people on the highways."

Dearborn had predicted that 38,000,000 cars would roll 5,600,000,000 miles over the nation's roads. He classified it as the United States' biggest traffic jam.

The 1936 death record was set during the four day Christmas holiday period. At that time 555 of the 761 deaths were in automobile accidents.

Last year's three day Labor day week and highway toll — 410 — was a postwar record.

On a four-day, non-holiday week end last month, an Associated Press tally across the country showed that only 455 persons met accidental death. Of these, 270 died in traffic mishaps, 75 drowned and 110 died from other accidental causes. The survey was made by the AP to compare holiday and non-holiday fatalities figures.

During the 1949 three day Fourth of July holiday only 296 were killed in traffic accidents.

Fatality Toll in Arkansas Reaches 16

Nine fatalities on Independence day itself boosted Arkansas' violent death toll for the July Fourth holiday period to 17.

Not one death was blamed on fireworks, often a major cause before many cities passed ordinances prohibiting or regulating the noise makers.

Five persons drowned in the holiday period which began last Saturday. Five were killed in traffic mishaps, one died of burns, three were shot to death, one killed by lightning another died of a fall.

Tuesday's deaths included: Herman Harris, 22, and Alton Nelson, 28, Negroes, who were shot to death on a Little Rock street after a disturbance which started in a nearby cafe. Police held another Negro, Percy Perry, 20, in connection with the shotgun slaying of the two.

John Wayne Marshall, five, of Widener, injured fatally when struck by an automobile near Forrest City.

Olan Hubert Mitchell, 31, a decorated combat veteran of World War Two, was shot to death at his Pine Bluff home. Coroner Ed Dappree said he killed himself, apparently as a result of despondency over financial difficulties.

Mrs. Owen Faulk of Hicks Corner, near Forrest City, who died of burns suffered Saturday when she attempted to clean a clock by boiling the parts in kerosene. Some of the oil spilled from the pan on the stove and a burst of flame lighted Mrs. Faulk's clothing.

Bill Brigham, 34, and Doyle Wells, 10, who drowned when a boat they and five other picknickers occupied overturned in Lenoir lake near Dumas. The other occupants escaped.

Floyd Hawkins, Negro, 19, of Texarkana, who was killed near Fulton in a collision of the automobile in which he was riding and a transport truck.

Jim Andrews, 60-year-old Columbia county farmer, who was shot in what Coroner Fred Lewis ruled a suicide.

Yankees, Allies Can Fly Blue Flag of U. N.

Washington, July 5 — (AP) — The blue flag of the United Nations may be flown by Americans and others fighting to stop the Communist invasion of South Korea.

Diplomats who reported this said also that Gen. Douglas MacArthur probably will be named United Nations commander for the Korean area.

McMath and Laney Meet on Stump

Portia, July 5 — (AP) — Ben Laney and Sid McMath yesterday afternoon repeated some of the things they've been saying about each other for the past several weeks.

The difference this time was that both were present, and each heard at first hand what his opponent for the Arkansas governorship had to say.

Governor Sid McMath will speak at the Livestock Show arena at Fair park Thursday night starting promptly at 7:30. Residents of this section are invited to hear Mr. McMath discuss all campaign issues.

Little of what was said was complimentary, although former Governor Laney did concede that Governor McMath is a "nice fellow." That was about as far as any "worthy opponent" attitude went.

The former governor and the incumbent — each seeking another term as the state's chief executive via the Democratic nomination — met here at a July Fourth program dedicating a $612,000 Black river highway bridge, which was constructed during Laney's administration.

Laney was first on the program. He started off recouping accomplishments of his administration in highway construction, but before long switched to an attack on McMath's administration.

As Laney saw McMath approach the speaker's stand the former governor told the crowd — estimated at 4,000 — "I like this boy (McMath). He's a nice fellow. I have nothing against him personally. But I just don't agree with him."

Laney then invited McMath to explain the reasons for the McMath-sponsored changes in the Laney-instigated revenue stabilization law; for a decrease in the state's surplus since Laney left office two years ago and for what he termed McMath's "two-by-four highways — two miles here and four miles there."

He declared the audience had told him "all they got out of $7,000,000 (McMath - sponsored) highway bonds was a white stripe down the middle of the road."

Also, he demanded to know why hadn't McMath kept his 1948 campaign promises — including one to raise teachers' salaries.

McMath in his turn said he couldn't "criticize the roads that Ben Laney built because he didn't build any."

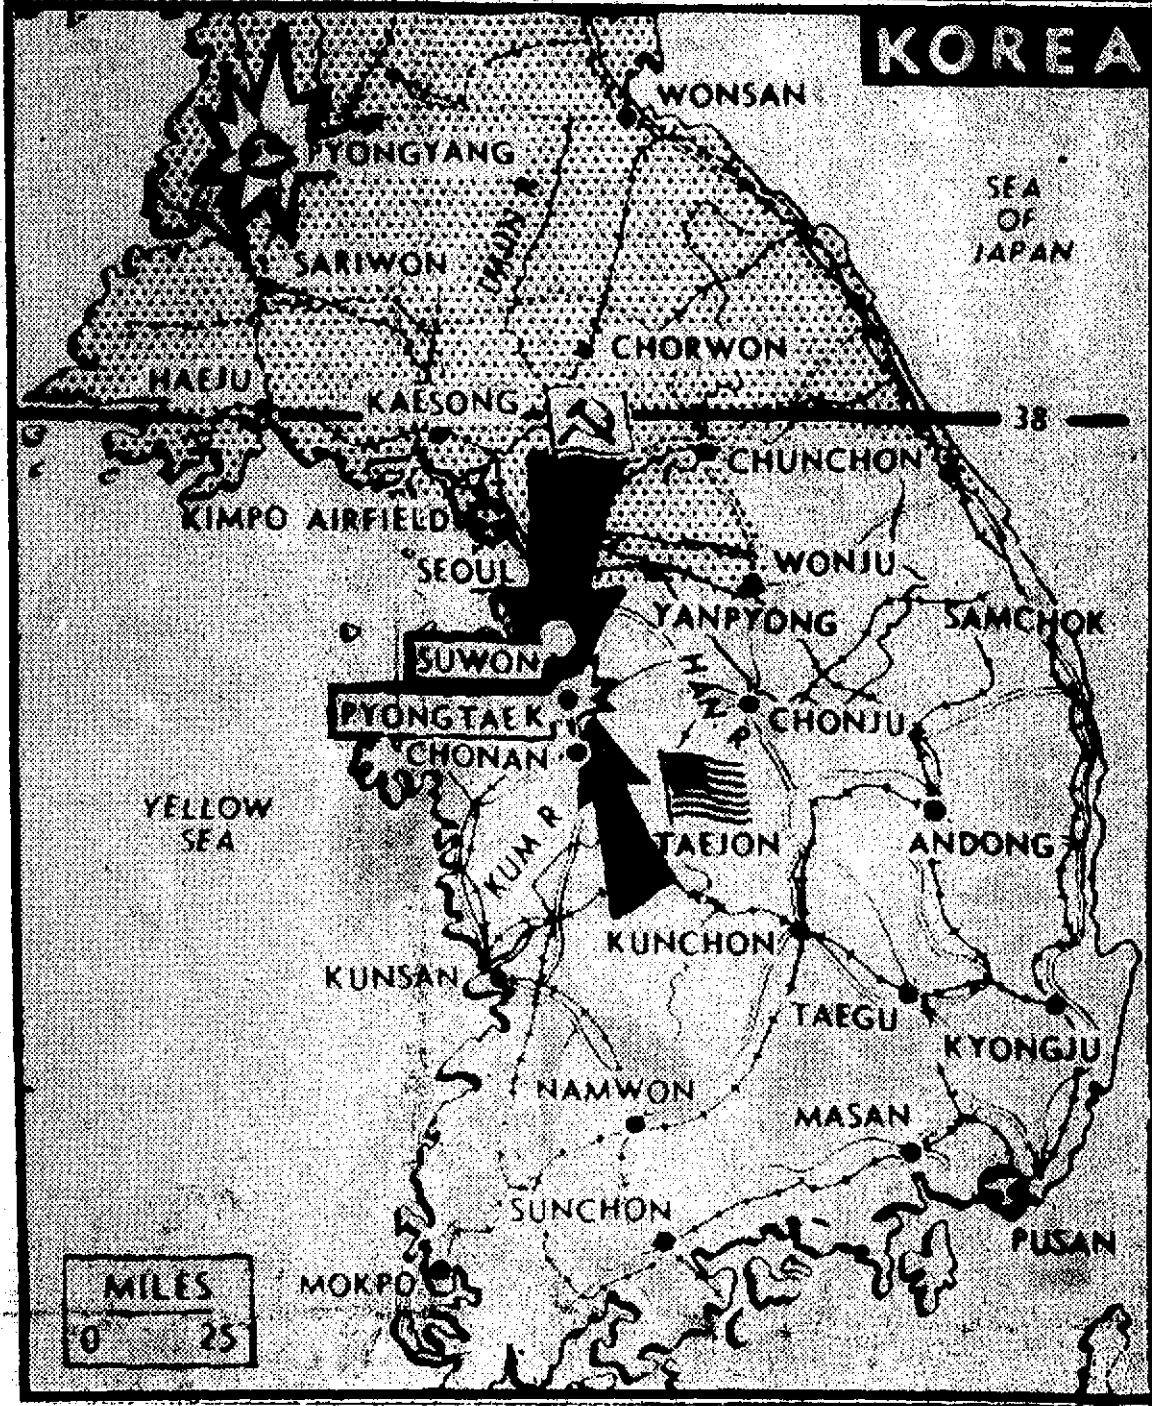

"Right here in Lawrence county," he asserted "I've built more roads in 18 months than Ben Laney did in four years."

Catholic Bishop Ousted by Romania

London, July 5 — (AP) — Romania announced today the expulsion of Roman Catholic Bishop Gerald Patrick O'Hara of Savannah-Atlanta, Georgia, on charges of spying. He is the last diplomatic representative of the Vatican in an Iron curtain country.

Two other members of the apostolic nunciature — in which Bishop O'Hara was regent — were expelled on similar charges. Vatican sources said the move had been expected from day to day and "doubtless is the prelude to the complete suppression of the Bucharest nunciature." This is the office of the diplomatic representative of the Vatican.

A broadcast by the Romanian news agency said the Communist-led regime in Bucharest had given Bishop O'Hara and the two other Catholic officials three days to leave the country. Attempts to reach Bishop O'Hara by phone from Prague were not immediately successful. A Prague operator was able to reach the nunciature but reported that "Bishop O'Hara is not present and his secretary refused to comment."

KOREAN MAP — As North Korean forces were building up for a big push southward after capturing Suwon (big arrow) a convoy of 25 Red Tanks were reported moving from Keesong to join the battle line. American forces had their first skirmish with the Reds at an outer defense post guarding P'yengtaek, 20 miles from Suwon, and South Korean forces were being threatened by a wide Communist flanking movement southeast of Suwon. Meantime American bombers struck again at P'yongyang, North Korean capital, according to the communist radio. (NEA Telephone)

Thomas Trails Monroney in Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, July 5 — (AP) — Incumbent Elmer Thomas trailed Rep. Mike Monroney by more than 5,000 votes today as tabulation of yesterday's Democratic senatorial primary election neared completion.

A runoff election July 25 was assured by the other five Democratic candidates who had more than 25,000 votes among them.

Returns from 3,116 of 3,786 precincts gave: Monroney 155,438, Thomas 149,965.

Johnston Murray, who hopes to win the governor's office once held by his father, held a wide lead over his three Democratic opponents but lacked the clear majority to avoid a runoff.

Murray, in returns from 3,011 precincts, had 177,438 votes to a combined total of 188,930 for his foes. William O. Coe, Oklahoma City attorney, was second man.

Former Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, father of this year's candidate, stayed at his son's headquarters until returns proved the younger Murray was definitely ahead.

The see-saw race between Monroney, fifth district congressman for six terms and Thomas, climaxed one of Oklahoma's hottest races since the late President Roosevelt came here in Thomas' behalf in the 1938 election.

Average Scoutmaster Isn't a Heroic Figure But He Is Doing a Wonderful Job

By HAL BOYLE

Valley Forge, Pa., — (AP) — The average scoutmaster isn't a very heroic looking figure.

But he is the real hero of the biggest youth movement in America — scouting.

There are thousands of scoutmasters here to supervise the activities of the 47,000 boy scouts attending their second national jubilee.

Some are bronzed and muscled young veterans of the last world war. Some are elderly. But I suppose a composite picture of them all would produce this typical scoutmaster:

He is short, middle-aged, balding, and puffs going up a hill on a hike. He is good-natured and long-suffering. He either owns a small business or holds a minor executive post in some one else's business. He probably has a kid or two of his own. His scouts don't pay him much open deference. They torment him often, but they obey him at the right time — and they like him.

He works voluntarily and without pay. He gives up his week-ends — and often his vacations — to take a group of other men's boys tramping through the woods to learn the ways of nature. He tries to teach them fellowship, brotherhood, social responsibility — and personal independence and self-reliance.

Since he works with boys ranging from 11 to 18, this means he must be a mixture of mother, father, older brother, priest, judge, advisor and teacher. That's a lot to ask from a guy who gives his time for nothing.

As a top scout executive said: "It is easy to poke fun at scoutmasters, and the cartoonists do. But they are the backbone of the scouting movement. Without them it would fall. You couldn't raise the money to pay these men for what they do of their own free will."

A balding, sunburned, paunchy man in shorts may look a bit ridiculous plowing through a forest with a pack of agile yapping boys at his heels. He may look like a fussy hen trying to police its wayward chicks.

But he probably knows that, too. The thing is, he also has a feeling of considerable satisfaction that what he is doing is worthwhile.

Trapped After Turning Back Tank-Led Thrust; American Planes, Ships Slash Targets

Tokyo, July 5 — (AP) — American and British carrier planes made slashing attacks on North Korean military targets Monday and Tuesday, General MacArthur announced tonight.

It was the first use of carrier planes in the Korean civil war. The planes were from the American carrier Valley Forge and the British Triumph.

They hurled their fiercest attacks on Pyongyang, capital of the North Korean Communists.

Two Russian-supplied Yak fighters were shot down Monday, the communists said, and six Yaks and two Li-2s were strafed on the ground Tuesday.

There were no personnel casualties during the two day strike, MacArthur added.

The naval fighter planes heavily damaged the building and hangar area at the east end of Pyongyang airport, reported to be the base for most of the North's air operations.

Earlier today, MacArthur's headquarters announced seven North Korean planes have been destroyed and four damaged in U. S. army air strikes.

Simultaneously, the U. S. air force was preparing to send more bombers into action.

MacArthur's communiqué reported these Red losses:

Seven planes destroyed and four damaged.

Seven armored cars captured and one destroyed.

119 trucks, 22 locomotives, 18 boxcars and seven tanks destroyed.

Additionally, the communiqué reported:

Wreckage of the naval blockade have sunk six Red trawlers and five Red cargo ships, besides damaging two other vessels.

A vast array of American air power is building up for the Korean war.

More B-29s were dispatched from the United States last night. The U. S. escort carrier, Sicily, its decks loaded with warplanes, sailed from San Diego yesterday for an undisclosed destination — presumably the war theater, however. The navy declined any information.

The fact that the Sicily sailed on a holiday, while naval guns nearby were firing a July 4 salute, indicated its mission was urgent.

One Killed in Accident Near Fulton, 7 Hurt

Floyd Hawkins, 19, Texarkana Negro, was killed and seven others injured in a highway accident involving a light truck and a United Transport truck at Fulton early yesterday, July 4.

Guy Downing, Arkansas state patrolman, said Hawkins was riding in the truck with seven others headed for a July 4 fishing trip to Red Lake, just below Fulton, when the accident occurred. Hawkins, who lives at Texarkana, died en route to a Texarkana hospital where he was being transferred after receiving emergency treatment in a Hope hospital.

The injured included: Ervin Reed 52, Texarkana Negro, Thelma Reed 30, Louise Reed 11, Viola Sales, 50; Lew Hawkins 10, Lanita Mitchell 7 and Kayin Mitchell 4.

The Reds were hospitalized here where their condition is reported satisfactory. Viola Sales and Lee Hawkins were taken to Texarkana.

Roy C. Clark, driver of the transport which crashed into the rear of the pickup, was charged with negligent homicide and following too closely behind another vehicle.

Downing said the pickup was attempting to turn off Highway 67 when the transport struck it.

Police Searching for Hit-Run Driver

Police are still searching for a hit and run driver who ran over Joe Nathan Harris Negro, last Sunday about 2 miles north of Hope on the Proving Ground road. Harris suffered a broken leg and the wheels of the vehicle crossed his arm. He was unable to tell who was driving the vehicle.

Taejon, South Korea, July 5 — (AP) — South Korea's army tonight said it was in full control of the area where U. S. and South Korean soldiers met their first contact with North Communist forces.

Correspondents said that of South Korean soldiers fighting south away from Taezon.

Most of them still had arms weapons. Some of them were withdrawn in a fashion, but there were no who obviously were not under discipline.

Along the highway, the front traffic lanes almost indescribably crowded with riding every sort of vehicle, bicycles, jeeps, tractors. There were South Korean soldiers in the area, some in a "liberated" zone.

Along the highway was evidence of the inability of machinery. Armored cars, trucks, and tanks were in the dozens. Many trucks and vehicles had turned into the ditch, and some were being stripped of their equipment.

Tokyo, July 5 — (AP) — U. S. Navy planes tonight slashed targets in North Korea, blasting battle lines from Seoul.

The planes were said to have broken through the North's defenses and could have been used to attack on the invaders.

General MacArthur's communique made no mention of this. This was the first time an American infantry unit had been in action since the invasion of North Korea.

Headquarters said only one northern soldier was killed. But U. S. troops prevailed in the battle. The U. S. army is now in a 12-mile advance at the front.

The communiqué said that the U. S. forces east of Suwon, a city designed to stop the advance of the North, were making the way for a drive to a military center 73 miles from Suwon.

An Advanced Command in South Korea, Thursday — (AP) — Eight Russian tanks struck American positions yesterday and one of them broke through the American line, but the American position was not forward element.

The action began at 11:15 p. m. Standard Time. Tuesday tanks moving south down from Suwon were met by U. S. medium artillery. The tanks were destroyed. American infantry positions were forced to retreat further.

As night fell, American firing heavy mortars which were parked near the railway station, 13 miles south of Suwon, maps put Suwon 19 miles from Suwon.

Unless the tanks are stopped it is possible they have been behind American positions which were cut off the day.

Lambert's office in the port earlier that he was cut off with the troops. He later showed that he was a Communist being cut off the day. Lambert was unable to dispatch until he was forward position.

Tokyo, July 5 — (AP) — North Korean tanks tonight pocketed an American position south of Suwon.

That happened after Communist tanks advanced toward Suwon. It was the first time the tanks had been in action since the invasion of North Korea.

Boy Scouts Get Serious Challenge

Valley Forge, Pa., July 5 — (AP) — If any boy scout leaves the national jamboree without a clear idea of American freedom — what it means, what it costs — it won't be the fault of American's leaders.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower did last night what President Truman did when the vast encampment opened four days earlier — told the 47,000 massed scouts that this is a rough world which will make severe demands on them before they are many years older.

But the former supreme Allied commander in Europe declared, his voice echoing across the fields where George Washington's army survived the harsh winter of 1777-78.

"Here at Valley Forge, every relic every monument assures us that even hunger, pain, nakedness and indescribable hardship cannot wholly dishearten those whose spirit is steeped in faith and loyalty to a lofty purpose."

A mighty roar from the scouts and leaders seated in the open-air amphitheater greeted Eisenhower when he appeared, unheralded, to lead the campers in the oath of allegiance to the United States.

His speech was short, ending with the famous words with which he launched the Normandy invasion: "Let'er rip!"

And the words touched off a spectacular display of fireworks watched by some 30,000 spectators in addition to the solid ranks of clapping, yelling scouts.

Colorful Bandit in Italy Killed

Palermo, Sicily, July 5 — (AP) — Salvatore Giuliano, wily-the-wisp bandit king who proclaimed his own Sicilian government and faunted Rome for its desperate seven-year attempt to run him down, was shot and killed in his mountain hideout just before dawn today.

The Italian government said the death of the colorful 28-year old Robin Hood of the hills meant the end of banditry in Sicily.

Commando police were hot on the heels of Giuliano for the past two weeks. In the last few days they closed in, surrounding him in his lair in the hills of Castelvetro, 50 miles from Palermo.

Giuliano tried to shoot his way out of the house in which he was hiding. Police opened fire with submachineguns and cut him down, ending in a blaze of fire the career of a man whose band was accused of killing nearly 100 policemen. Some of Giuliano's comrades escaped.

The special detachment of 2,000 police which had been trailing the outlaw trapped him with a radio car camouflaged as a news paper truck. When Giuliano left his hideaway house to go to another building, police sprang the trap. The battle was brief. The bandit king fell with police bullets in his chest.

The police who finally got him were part of a special force of 2,000 carabinieri man-hunters who had been closing a dragnet on him for eight months.

In that time most of his band had been wiped out. A dozen or more are on trial and nearly that many have been killed in fights with the police.

Trapped After

American and Korean forces on to higher ground north of Osan, 11 miles southeast of Suwon, and appeared ready for a further push.

The fate of the trapped Americans was not reported to U. S. advanced headquarters in South Korea. That report came from Associated Press Correspondent O. H. P. King. He added:

Reports of the surprisingly quick Red maneuver came not long after the American commander in Korea, Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, had gone to the front to try to learn details of the tank-artillery duel.

In that engagement, two tanks were reported knocked out and the other six retreated.

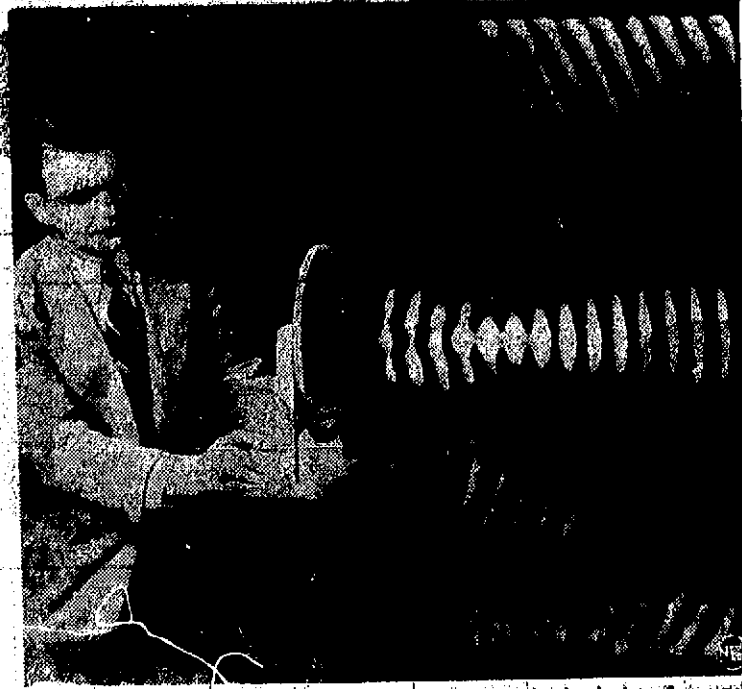

But the surviving tanks bypassed the artillery, then cut in between the forward gun positions and their supporting infantry.

An undisclosed number of South Korean troops also were trapped between the tank-led Red infantry and their own defense lines.

A U. S. liaison plane said a Red force of undetermined size was moving southeast from Suwon.

Earlier, General MacArthur's headquarters said American planes had destroyed seven and damaged four North Korean aircraft in the 11-day old war.

In Tokyo, General MacArthur announced British and American carrier planes made slashing at-returned safely to their ships, MacArthur said.

Heavy damage to Pyongyang air installations were reported. American forces went into action against a North Korean force presumed to be south of captured Suwon. The Korean force spearhead was estimated at around 40,000 men.

Announcement of a knockout of the tanks came from a high source at the advanced American base in Korea. It was confirmed here, partly by an army spokesman and the Korean defense minister, Sihm Sung Mo.

The advanced base spokesman told Associated Press Correspondent O.H.P. King that no direct communication from the American force engaged in battle had been received. He said his information came from Korean sources.

Surprise Russian Move Predicted

Hong Kong, July 5 — (AP) — Diplomatic observers today predicted Soviet Russia is setting the stage for a surprise move against the United States in the Far East.

They said the Russians, probably would rush Chinese Communist troops from Manchuria to aid Soviet-supported North Korea in the Korean civil war.

Such a move "can be expected any time within the next month, and probably within two weeks," they added. All demanded anonymity.

One observer gave these reasons for forecasting a Soviet offensive in the Far East: 1—His country (and he declined use of his nationality as well as his name for diplomatic reasons) has "definite word" that the Chinese Reds have been massing troops in Manchuria since they captured Hainan island, off the south China coast, a month ago.

For three days, independent Chinese newspapers here have reported intensified Communist troop movements northward from south China. My informant's word today is the first official word that this redeployment of Chinese Red forces actually has been going on for some time, and with a definite pattern.

The diplomat added that the Chinese Red troops in Manchuria can be expected to cross into North Korea as Russia's answer to American support for invaded Korea.

2—The recent withdrawal from Tokyo of high level members of the Soviet mission could be considered an "indication that something big is brewing." He declined to elaborate.

Diplomatic observers agree generally that Chinese Communist participation in Korea is virtually certain. Nevertheless, they

Cuts Truman Funds for Backward Area

Washington, July 6 — (AP) — The senate appropriations committee was reported today to have voted only $10,000,000 for President Truman's point four program of aid to backward areas of the world.

A committee source said the group also wrote in rigid restrictions on the use of the money.

President Truman asked $45,000,000 for the program, dubbed a "point four" from its listing in the foreign policy section of his inaugural address.

When congress enacted general foreign aid legislation, it authorized an appropriation of up to $35,000,000 for the program. The appropriations committee is now considering how much actual cash should be provided.

also are inclined to believe that Soviet Russia has not yet made up her mind as to how far she is ready to go in the Far East at this time.

One observer, pointing out that the Korean conflict has not yet appeared as the lead story in either of Hong Kong's two pro-Communist Chinese dailies, said: "We know for a fact that the newspapers in south China have explicit orders not to comment on policy matters pertaining to the situation in Korea. This most probably means that the Russians themselves have not yet reached a policy decision on this matter."

Montana Has Balloon Trouble

Dillon, Mont., July 5 — (AP) — Sheriff Paul Temple has asked federal authorities to identify a large balloon which landed in southwestern Montana yesterday.

The transparent plastic balloon came to earth on the Lockyear farm near Dell. It's about 100 feet long and 50 feet in diameter. In it the sheriff said he found an eight-day spring wound alarm clock and sixvolt battery. Near it was a nylon parachute marked "made in the U. S. A." which Temple believes was attached to the balloon.

Temple notified the federal bureau of investigation and civil aeronautics administration of the find, saying he believes the balloon is owned by the army, navy, weather bureau or some government agency.

Weathermen in Montana say they use no weather balloon that large.

An official at the Great Falls, Mont., air force base says it's unlikely the balloon is an air force one, because it's so large.

The security officer for the government's atomic plant at Arco, Idaho, has requested a written description of the balloon.

Heavy Rains Bring Floods to Pennsylvania

Pittsburgh, July 5 — (UP) — Heavy rains sent "flash" floods pouring through Pittsburgh valleys today and at least three persons were reported missing.

The rains hit heavy north of Pittsburgh and along the Ohio valley towns below the Golden triangle.

Moon town ship firemen searched the Flaugherty run area for a Mrs. Millsop and her daughter, Rita, reportedly washed out of their home along Flaugherty run. A neighbor reported that he made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue them before they disappeared down stream.

William J. Ward, proprietor of trailer camp along Camp Horne road, near Emsworth, also was reported missing. A coast guard crew was sent to the camp to rescue occupants of about 30 floating trailers.

The Coraopolis business district was flooded with three feet of water stalling automobiles and trolley cars.

An aerial truck of the Pittsburgh fire department was pressed into service in an attempt to rescue the occupant of a marooned automobile on Camp Horne road.

Dozens of other communities were flooded and police were forced to detour traffic away from blocked highways.

The weather bureau reported that more than two inches of rain fell north of Pittsburgh during the morning and that showers would continue throughout the day and tomorrow.

New York education against union racketeers and tyranny began Wagner Labor Relations act. I was a tyro in those early days, only sketchily familiar with the union movement and sentimentally inclined to the unsound proposition that whatever unions did was good for labor.

The enormity of the union movement soon became apparent to me and it was dramatized opportunely by the terrible oppression of citizens and intimidation of communities and governments by the goons of the C. I. O. in the drive to compel unwilling Americans to join the auto workers, the steel workers and other mushroom organizations which had sprung from the foul soil of the Roosevelt-Communist conspiracy. I educated myself as I conducted a running fight against this vicious concept of the inferior status of the human being under Roosevelt-union constitutions. They differ in detail but in principle they agree that the citizen was not free to select his own bargaining agent even though that freedom was supposed to be the first article of the new faith.

The individual had to accept as his bargaining agent the union prevailing in his craft or in the shop where he worked or hoped to work. If he didn't accept the bargaining agent he couldn't get a job. In many cases, if he already had a job and the union muscled into the shop, the glibbly worker who welcomed the racketeers and readily signed up soon discovered that he had just done himself out of his job. The union racketeer put him at the bottom of the list and put some stranger with seniority into his job.

The stranger a seniority might be a poor victim of extortion, himself, buying another poor devil's job for $50 or a kick-back from his pay. The poor sucker had to live. He had children, sickness in the family, all the familiar misfortunes and emergencies of our people and it was dog-eat-dog. The fellow who joined up and paid his initiation only to be muscled out was not allowed to go up Elm street and down Spruce applying for work. He had to hang around the union hall and wait until some racketeer sung out his card number — in many cases they didn't even have names — and sent him to an open job. It might last 3 days and when it ended he was back in the hall and back at the bottom of the list. He might finally pull stakes with the wife and kids and a satchel or two and leave town in the jalopy to try elsewhere.

I find that I have digressed to reveal just one tiny phase of this evil system which was being holier up all or as a victory for labor. But I can prove to you that although this is only a minute abomination it is typical of many. The system is entirely composed of such vile mockeries operated under a political charter issued by the Roosevelt-Truman governments, the unions. So you cannot deny the conclusion that our union system is a system of oppression, degradation, extortion and political corruption.

The only answers have been epithets and a few insinuations that I have been bribed by the national association of manufacturers. You may be sure that if I WENDY HILLIER, the driver's license said, was 24, five feet five, 114 pounds. Her eyes were green and the data understated that her hair was red. The space reserved for occupation was blank. Confirming her identity were $450 worth of traveler's checks.

"What are you doing so far from Cleveland, Miss Hillier?"

The green eyes stared at me in sullen resentment. This baby was going to be hard to handle.

"Did you ever think of offering a lady a drink?"

"O. K. Name it—maybe I've got it."

She said she would settle for a bourbon highball. I made the highball and poured a straight one for myself. I kept a wary eye on her while, for I was taking no chances with this number. I took her the drink and handed it to her. I didn't notice until she had it in her left hand that her right hand was concealed and that a foot was tucked back under the chair. Then it was too late.

A wildcat couldn't have been faster. She threw the contents of the glass into my face, and as I staggered, blinded and aware that I had fallen for the oldest trick in the world, she conked me with the heel of the slipper she had taken from her foot.

Later I woke up staring at the ceiling. My head ached mightily at the temple.

I washed my temple in shaving lotion, and it burned like fire. I walked out the back way and down the fire stairs knowing well enough that the red convertible would be gone. I had been out nearly an hour and a half. I walked down the alley. No taxi chose to come along at that moment, but a bus and I reached a stop at the same time, and I boarded it. I got off within a couple of blocks of the parking lot containing my car and walked to it. I headed for McGregor's place. My car is equipped with a short-wave radio, and I turned it on. It was just possible that my failure to show out at McGregor's and arrest the old man would irritate Kever enough that he would put out a pick-up for me.

There was a pick-up for me, all right, but it wasn't the kind I'd thought. It was a pick-up for murder. McGregor was dead, and I gathered from the headquarters syntax that I was wanted for the job.

THE juke box at the Wee Spot kept running full blast, for I kept feeding nickels into it. The proprietor and his wife weren't liking it, for they wanted to listen to the radio on the bar. I didn't want them to listen to it, and that's why I kept playing all the loud pieces on the juke box.

I was also eating sandwiches that tasted like paper sacks and drinking beer that was giving me a slightly grossy feeling. But it was the only way that I could keep on using this back-road beer joint as a hideout without stirring up the suspicion of the proprietor and his wife.

Maybe they were suspicious anyway, but a customer is a customer and business is business.

While I'd been driving down the back alleys and country lanes trying to avoid the patrol cars I had picked up some more stuff about The State vs. Ben Corbett. I was in a jam this time, and it looked as if only the passing of a miracle would get me out of it.

The whole story about the four $1000 bills was on the regular wave bands by now, with spot newscasts keeping the public alive to the latest iniquity of Ben Corbett, sometime chief investigator in the office of the attorney general. I was no longer on the payroll, for Kever had announced my suspension. I could hardly blame him. Shelton had had to level, and the story of the four grand was enough to cook my goose. But when the four grand added up to the murder of poor old McGregor, Kever had a plain right to lose his temper.

ANY man with a sane mind would believe me guilty. McGregor had threatened to expose my acceptance of bribe money if I arrested him, and I had chosen the one way out to prevent arresting him and the consequent exposure. I had sneaked back into the McGregor house, leaving my car in a back road and using the cover of the woodlot at the rear of the house. I had crept up on Shelton, knocked him out with a blow from my automatic, then gone up the stairs and shot McGregor in cold blood.

I wondered if Shelton really thought that. He had been mentioned on the radio because of his statement that McGregor had threatened me with exposure. He had been described as "a friend of the fugitive." I thought that explained to Kever why I would pull anything so crude as sneaking in and killing McGregor with Shelton as a witness to McGregor's threat. Kever would think I had counted on Shelton's friendship to keep him silent about that threat.

Well, I wouldn't have been that stupid. Shelton is a clean-cut kid who would level in a case like that, no matter how much he would hate putting me in a crack. I still did count on Shelton to come through with all the chips down. That's why I phoned him, telling him to meet me here at the Wee Spot.

Man Killed Watching a Ball Game

New York, July 5 (AP)—A bullet aimed by chance or incredible marksmanship whipped through the Polo Grounds yesterday and struck one of 40,000 baseball fans dead in his grandstand seat.

Twelve hours later part of the 40 detectives working on the case found several empty .22 caliber shells on the roof of a nearby apartment building — and a .22 target pistol and two rifles in an apartment one floor below.

They questioned a 14-year-old Negro boy who lived in the room with his grandmother, but said he denied any connection with the holiday shooting.

He was detained for further questioning.

The victim was 54-year-old Bernard Lawrence Doyle of Fairview, N. J., a former fight manager who launched James J. Braddock on the path to the world's heavyweight championship.

Doyle, in straw hat and shirt-sleeves, was sitting in an upper left field stand with a 12-year-old neighbor boy, waiting to root for the New York Giants when they opened their Fourth of July doubleheader with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

He was watching the Dodgers' pre-game batting practice when his close neighbors heard a "pop" like a paper bag breaking, and saw Doyle slump back in his seat. They assumed he had been taken ill suddenly, but then saw blood run from his ears. There was a small hole in his left temple. He died instantly.

DOROTHY DIX

Public Scolding

Dear Miss Dix: Won't you write something about nagging children at the table about their manners. It not only spoils the child's meal, but often wrecks its character. When I was a child, timid and nervous, my aunt nagged me about my table manners, with the result that to this day I cannot dine with ease or pleasure with strangers as I am overcome with self-consciousness. The result of this childhood nagging had the opposite, but equally disastrous, effect on my brother. At home he is a man of refined and gentle habits, but before strangers he hides his inferiority complex by being uncouth and ostentatious.

I never correct my children publicly. I wait until we are alone. Then we talk it out. In this way they are taught constructively without the lesson maiming them for life.

JOAN

Answer: I hope that many other mothers will heed the advice given by this wise woman, for she is leading her children unconsciously into the right road and making them like it instead of scourging them down it with rods.

Of course the faults of children have to be corrected. Their manners and their habits have to be formed. They have to be taught the amenities of life. But there are different ways of doing this and perhaps the reason that children are so often impervious to their mothers' correction is because they are given in the wrong way and at the wrong time.

Parents Can Be Brutal

I have often been struck by the unintentional brutality of parents in dealing with their children's mistakes and faults and have wondered how they, themselves, would like to be treated as they were treating some sensitive, helpless little creature. They seem to forget that the home is the child's world, that its Father and mother represent to it what we call society, and that their approval or disapproval is its shame or disgrace.

There is a time and a place for all things and for the correcting of children it is not in public, but in private where the child's feelings are spared and quiet talk of Mother or father sinks in and becomes a light to guide the stumbling little feet.

Dear Miss Dix: I married a divorced woman with three children. After a few years of married life, which has consisted of pinching and depriving myself of everything to support these step-children, I find myself growing old before my time and I have come to fairly hate my wife. She is pure as gold, straight as a string, pretty as a picture, a good manager and economical, but there are these three children.

The oldest one is old enough to go to work and I'll soon be rid of him, but two will still be left. How can I get rid of them and still hold their mother, for I feel my love might return if I were alone? Can you suggest any remedy in this case?

A Mere Man
Answer: The only thing you can do is either to leave the mother or possess your soul in patience and wait for the other children to grow up and get on their own feet. You certainly couldn't be cold-blooded enough to tear them away from their mother and send them to an orphan home, nor is it likely that she would agree to such an arrangement.

But it doesn't seem to me that you have any right to welch on your bargain, because you were perfectly aware when you married this woman that she had the children and that you would have to assume their support.

Sometimes, you know, the bread we cast upon the waters does come back in angel food, and it may be that these stepchildren that you cherished in their infancy will be your prop and stay in your old age. At any rate, let us hope so.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 24, married to a man thirty years my junior. Recently my hair has begun to turn gray and I am afraid it will exaggerate the difference in our ages. I don't like the idea of dying my hair, but my husband not only dislikes my gray hair but wishes me to change from brunette to blonde. What to do? Mrs. S. K. U.

Answer: Dye it blonde, if that will make your husband happy. If you have it done at once you will avoid the aging-period look.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My father and mother had been married a long time. A month ago he died. What happiness can she, a woman starting her sixties, have without the man she loved? Have without out of life can a woman get who has not been trained for some absorbing profession and who has only been a housewife and mother and enjoyed that and the success of making countless friends? My mother is only partially independent. She is coming to live with me and that moves her a long distance from her old home and friends and leaves her nothing to do to fill in the time. Must all of her future life be empty and meaningless and miserable?

A READER
Answer: You are about to make the tragic mistake that so many loving and dutiful children make, of breaking up their mother's home when their father dies. The sons and daughters are so overflowing with pity for poor Mother; they cannot bear to think of leaving her alone in the house that will seem so

Home Town Talent Takes Lake Village Beauty Honors

Lake Village, July 5 (AP)—Home town girls took first and second place honors in the annual Miss Lake Chicot contest here last night.

Darlene Jones, a 17-year-old brunette with brown eyes, won the honor and was crowned by her predecessor, Beverly Mai Jones of Warren.

Mary Ann Nicolini was second. Third place was captured by Ruth Tillotson of Greenville, Miss. Miss Jones, a senior at Lake Village high school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odie Jones. She was a runner-up in the Miss Lake Chicot contest last year.

There were 16 contenders for this year's title.

The beauty pageant was the climax of a day-long water carnival and Fourth of July celebration, which is held here annually.

A parade along Lake Shore drive and motor boat races were other events.

A home town entrant also grabbed top honors in the boat races. David Livingston of Lake Village won four firsts and finished second in one of the 15 races.

had been they would have found that out and placarded by guilt years ago. But meanwhile, I was nailing racketeers, and I am proud to have implicated William Green the time he was caught endorsing a petition to President Roosevelt for a pardon for an old capone gangster in charge of one of the big AF of L racketeers who had done time for prostituting a young girl. I have implicated Green in other serious incidents and certified the facts. He never could deny them. There is your great American labor leader.

The worst of it all is, and this is a menace without mitigation, that all the politicians and union leaders insist that it cannot function if you impair any of its absolute powers. The absolute powers of unions operated as subsidiaries of the national administration thus become absolute powers of the party. In other words, the Democratic party has absolute power over some 13, 14 or 15 million people and total taxing power on their incomes, which can be exercised through these unions as party subsidiaries.

Now I read a piece in Collier's, an old New Deal weekly, in which John L. Lewis gets the "my God can such things be?" Treatment Walter Davenport, an old friend and a fine reporter with whom I sometimes have disagreed, discovers that John L. is a dictator. The story covers the shocking but commonplace experience of a coal miner with a wife and little girl whose work was limited to three days a week by Lewis and who suddenly found himself expelled from his trade by the judgment of a Mock court in his local union for writing that Lewis was a dictator. This was rudeness to his majesty and Joe Dickmon is out permanently except that Lewis may grant him an imperial pardon which he won't accept.

But there is the rub. To hear the tone of surprise in this piece you would think this was something new whereas it is familiar practice in most unions and is inherent in the constitutions of all of them. When I went before a sub-committee of congress last year to name a lot of Joe Dickmons who had been similarly put upon I discovered that the chairman was a lawyer in the practice of suing his
